TEMPORARY BUREAU TO BE ORGANIZED

To Superintend and Direct the Organization of Good Roads Clubs in Each County,

City and Town in the (Special From a Staff Correspondent.) DANVILLE, VA., Jan. 31.-An initia tory convention, which is to be followed by others all over the State, in the interests of good roads, with the ultimate idea of perfecting a State organization and electing officers, was held here to night, under the auspices of the Danville Commercial Association. There were several hundred visitors present, and a great deal of enthusiasm was manifested. Every section of the State was reped. Every section of the State was represented, except the extreme Southwest. Senator A. C. Latimer, of South Carolina, the father of the good roads bill, was among the prominent speakers. The address of Senator Latimer was well received, there being cries all over the house for him to continue when he had concluded his remarks. He discussed the conomy of good roads and their relation to the farmer.

Other speakers were M. V. Richards, land and industrial agent of the Southern Railway, on good roads as an ald to immigration; Martin Dodge, of the good roads, inquiries, Department of Agriculture, in State and in road buildins.

The Press.

Frank S. Woodson, of The Richmond Times-Dispatch, said he was in attendance upon the meeting to show by his presence merely the approval of the part he represented, and he thought of the press of Virginia, in general of any organized movement that had in view practical road building.

Mr. Woodson modestly referred to the course of the press up to now concerning road building, declaring that the press had been fighting for years for good roads in Virginia, but up to now they were engaged in a kind of glorilla way-fare; shooting in the air, so to speak.

The press has all along felt the need of an organization, under which it may fight to better purposes. "The Times-Dispatch generally was ready to enlist in a properly organized and well officered army to fight for good roads along systematic, scientific and practical lines." Such an organization, the press hopes will result from to-night's meeting.

The Resolutions.

The Resolutions.

The following resolutions, paving the way for a general movement in the interest of improved highways throughout the State, were adopted:

Resolved, I. That the convention electupon the recommendation of the members present, a temporary bureau, composed of ten members, one from each congressional district, which bureau shall select its own chairman. The duties of the bureau shall select its own chairman. The duties of the bureau shall be; A. To superintend and direct the organization of "good roads" clubs and associations in each county, city and town of the Commonwealth, to suggest amendments necessary thereto, to compile and publish all possible information as to road building and the costs thereof, and to devise ways and means of putting our present road laws into immediate effect, pending the chactment of better laws. C. To call, at such time and place as it may deem expedient, a convention composed of delegates from "good roads" clubs and associations now existing, or such as may hereafter be organized, for the purpose of forming a permanent. State "good roads" association. D. To collect and disburse funds to carry out the object of this bureau.

Recommendations.

conding the construction of permanent good roads.

2. That we advocate the working of both falls and pententiary convicts in permanent road-building in the State, and helieve that the State should furnish food, clothe and guard them free of cost to the county.

4. That we appeal especially to the farmers and all associations of farmers in Virginia, who are peculiarly dependent upon good roads for transportation and communication, to give their support to this move; we request the press of the State to lond its all and influence, and we ask all labor organizations, chambers of commerce, boards of trade, business men's associations, the Virginia Real 25-tate Asenuy Association, and the countries, cities and lowns of the Commonwealth to co-perate with us in forming and perfecting an organization capable, if wisely directed, or conferring the highest benefit upon the State and its people.

5. That we request the State Board of Agriculture of Virginia, in its several district institutes, to devote one lecture at each institute to the good roads cause, and that they be requested to publish same.

Welcome.

The delegates were welcomed on behalf of the city by Capiain Harry Wooding, Mayor of the etty, and by Mr. A. W. Traylor, president of the Commercial Association.
